Arthur Sweetser was a social reference for Subject. McC. is cited as a friend of Carmel Offie, and as a close associate of fm Hohenlohe and his mother, Princess Stefanie von Hohenlohe, Hungarian nationals who were interned as enemy aliens during WW II. McC. listed John A. Morrison as a social reference. In 1945, one of his character references, Arthur Schoenfeld, described McC. as a strange person, a parlor pink and pro-Russian. Julius Rezler, a step-brother, or half-brother, of Francis Deak, admitted having been a member of the Hungarian CP and said he had joined the organization upon the advice of Deak so he could furnish information to contacts in the U.S. Legation in Budapest--Mr. Squires, Mr. McCargar, and Mr. Prince.

The name of James G. McCargar appeared in the address book of Andre Gellert. This is probably identical to James Goodrich McCargar, a former employee of this Agency from about Dec. 1948 to about June 1950 when he left to return to the State Dept. From April 1946 to Dec 1947 McC. was a foreign service officer assigned to the American Legation, Budapest. In May 1955 he was employed as a political analyst in the Department of Exile Relations, Free Europe Committee.
